Dear Sirs:

I feel that Microsoft's monopoly in the software market is anticompetitive and anti-consumer and should be corrected by requiring them to pub information on their APIs and other portions of the Windoze operating system.

This would allow other software companies to write code that is unimpeded by the interface machinations currently being foisted on us by this company. It would also make changing from one operating system to another relatively painless if the file formats were standardized.

Thank you for the work you have done on this matter.

Sincerely,
Adrian D. Carey
